On 12/12/2003, the inventor, Steve T. West, of New Palestine, Indiana, filed a patent application for a method of determining the value of a piece of property, such as a piece of land, by comparing the value of the property to the value of a similar piece of property.

The method of the invention is a computer-implemented method. It involves receiving data about a piece of property, such as its location, size, and shape, and comparing this data to data about a similar piece of property. The data about the similar piece of property is obtained from a database. The method then determines the value of the piece of property based on the comparison.
